Emily Jones serves as the Principal Practice Leader for Warren Averett Technology Group. She has more than 30 years of experience, including a 12-year career at NCR Corporation, a world leader in transaction technologies, and 20 years with Jackson Thornton Accounting and Consulting in their technology group where she was a founding member. Her primary responsibilities include management of all aspects of Warren Averett Technology Group as well as evaluating and implementing efficient, effective and scalable processes that support customer satisfaction, company profitability and risk mitigation. Emily focuses on both company and customer growth through an emphasis on supplying education and consulting on best practices for risk reduction and around information technology.

Emily has a varied skill set outside of business management that includes application and personal skill instruction, public speaking, information technology consulting and project management. She resides in Millbrook with her husband, and they enjoy spending time with their daughter, son and five grandchildren.
